Our latest completed project: Brewery Barn Conversion,
Dawlish

Living Space Architects is thrilled to announce the completion of the newly-named 'Brewery Barn', an old Dawlish brewery that has been successfully converted into a contemporary family home.

Formerly known as 'The Old Stable', this property falls within the conservation area of Dawlish, and it was vital that any adaptations were made in a way that protected its heritage and didn't compromise its historical importance. This was an exciting project with lots of room for creativity and flair.

The importance of energy efficient housing

A house that uses energy efficiently is not only better for the environment, but also less costly. Before any new build, the design work has to go through a 'detailing' process in order to analyse its energy efficiency.

Committed to sustainability, Living Space Architects strives to meet the highest accredited energy standards with all of its designs, and you can click here to read more about the current challenges we're tackling with a new build in Devon.

North Bank: a space transformed

Recently completed, this property in Lymington is rather an eye-catcher after being transformed with a contemporary twist, resulting in a pleasing modern aesthetic.

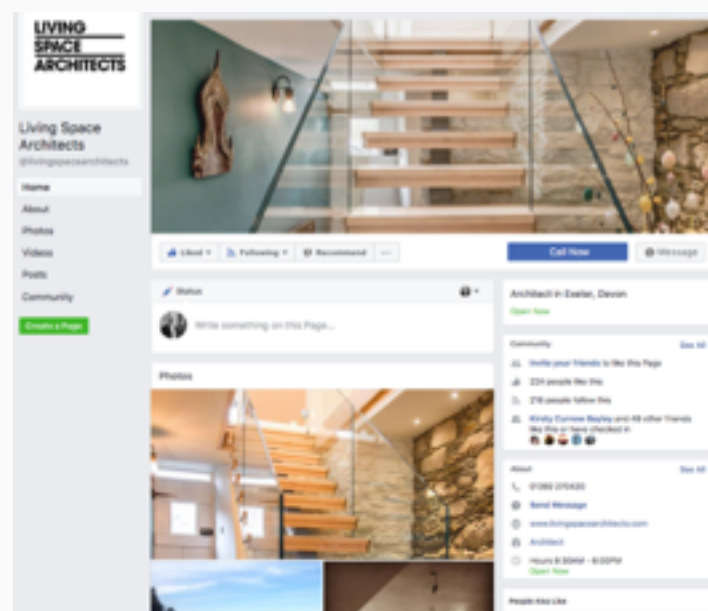

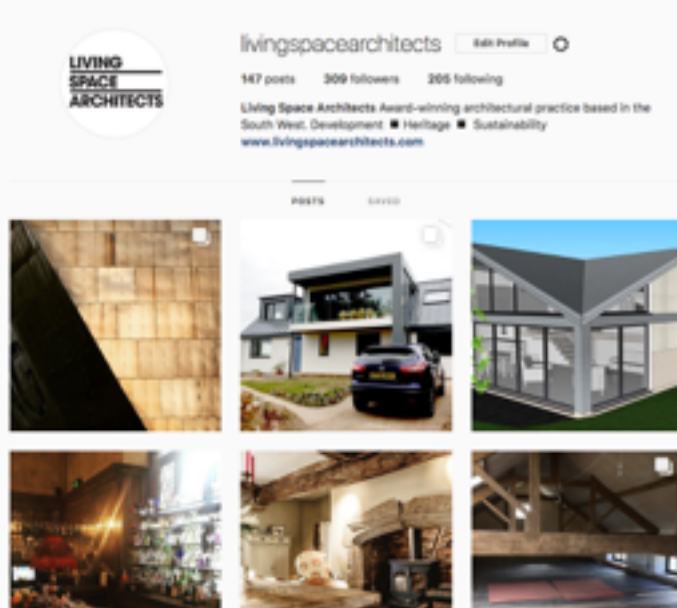

Penton, Crediton

Working in conjunction with Nick Gilbert Scott on this extension project, we created a new ground floor bedroom, as well as enlarging the existing living space. The light bright and contemporary feel of the new structure provides a pleasing contrast to the existing building's design, whilst also maintaining a coherent appearance.
